

From: kevin.richman@accenture.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/16/02 8:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

At this point I feel it is unnecessary to further pursue litigation against Microsoft. Why penalize a company further when there are clearly other alternatives out there for all of their products. And why inhibit a company from integrating their products. I don't care if my computer comes with Internet Explorer on it, because I know I can just as easily install Netscape or any other browser to access the internet. At this point further litigation is a waste of taxpayer's money and there will be no economic gain by pursuing further action.

Kevin Richman
Michigan

This message is for the designated recipient only and may contain privileged, proprietary, or otherwise private information. If you have received it in error, please notify the sender immediately and delete the original. Any other use of the email by you is prohibited.